Published: Milestone resolution on Africa's Sacred Natural Sites

22nd June 2017

Dear <<First Name>>,

Following last week's exciting news that the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights had passed a resolution on the recognition and protection of sacred natural sites and territories, we are now delighted to share the translated and finalised version.

Resolution 372 is available here in English or here in French.

We have also produced a variety of materials relating to the Resolution. Information on what it means and what it does can be found in the Q&A, we've sent out a press release, and more general information can be found in our primary mailing.

We're excited that the African Commission has taken such a positive step and, whilst the final resolution did not contain all the calls made by custodian communities, there is plenty of interest within the African Commission to working with custodians and NGOs going ahead. We very much look forward to that!

Working together, to strengthen the African Earth Jurisprudence movement.
